

Winter 2009 Newsletter

News

Firstly I would like to wish all my customers - past, present and future - a very Merry Christmas and prosperous 2010 - thank you for all your custom over the last 12 months, I look forward to helping you with your computer issues next year

2009 has been a very busy year with lots of changes in computer technology and the release of Windows 7 - a lot of users were not happy with its predecessor Windows Vista and found it harder to use, prone to errors and a lot slower to run - I am pleased to say after many months being involved in beta testing Windows 7 and now having set up many new systems for my customers, that this time Microsoft seems to have got things perfectly balanced, the new Windows 7 is much better and has beaten all sales records for previous versions

For anyone considering a new computer please visit my website for a free buyers guide as well as recommended makes and models - feel free to email me for advice

Over the past few days I have been updating some of the quick reference guides available for free on my website:-

Windows 7 - more new features explained including how to troubleshoot some basic problems yourself using the new troubleshooting packs

Routine Maintenance - new section on backing up your documents, photos etc to external hard drive or USB memory stick

AVG renewals - for all customers using AVG Internet Security to protect your computers, please contact me when your subscription is due for renewal to see if I have any special promotions or discounts available!
